No need to worry about packing your wedding dress—Aruba's retailers offer a wide variety of classic, couture, cocktail-chic, and beachy-bohemian styles. Many of the dresses featured here are not from traditional bridal boutiques, as the easy-breezy styles many destination brides prefer can also play a role in every woman's warm-weather wardrobe.

The island's landscapes—from serene beaches, untamed countryside, casually sophisticated country clubs, and historic downtown architecture—offer brides a potpourri of dreamy backdrops for ceremonies, receptions, and bridal photography.

Breakfast IN THE PARK

Text by Tina Causey-Bislick
Photography by Steve Keith

Aruba is blessed with some of the most amazing beaches in the world, which is why the island is renowned for destination weddings. But Aruba's diverse geography offers unique alternative venues ripe with local culture and authenticity. One of my favorite setups comes courtesy of House of Mosaic, with Fernando Mansur at the helm in collaboration with event planner Angelo Tromp. His "Pirate's Bounty Breakfast," set amongst the pristine wilderness of Arikok National Park, is an award-winning setup recognized by Smart Meetings magazine, a leading publication for professionals in the meetings, events, travel, and hospitality industry.

Fernando forgoes formulaic, always striving to bring the unexpected to his events. The event master has a way of creating layer upon layer of eclectic elegance, and his setup in Arikok National Park meshes history and antiquity with casual al fresco chic. The end result is a truly original presentation that would make any wedding-related event memorable and distinctive.

"My inspiration behind this theme was the Spanish explorer, Alonso de Ojeda," explains Fernando. In 1499, de Ojeda discovered Aruba, laying claim to the island for Spain's Queen Isabella. "The décor I use to embellish the setup represents the bounty Alonso de Ojeda might have brought to the island from his ship," he shares.

Fernando originally created this look, paired with a traditional island breakfast for the Aruba Convention Bureau. But this versatile look can complement a variety of venues and cuisines. For more information, contact House of Mosaic.

Signature Wedding Craft Cocktails

Photography by Steve Keith

Handcrafted cocktails are lively additions to any event, and these liquid, artisanal pleasures add a unique component to island weddings. The island's craft cocktail scene is growing, led by Hollywood Smokehouse, whose "Front Porch" craft cocktails were featured last summer in USA Today. Further proving the restaurant's cocktail prowess, head bartender Danny van der Linden won the Iron Bartending title this past October for his Aruba Aloe cocktail.

Hollywood Smokehouse's craft cocktails are also featured at off-premise events, and Danny, along with co-bartender Danvid Webb, collaborated with the restaurant's creative director and co-owner, Tina Bislick, to create three signature beach cocktails that are perfect for a destination wedding. "The great thing about craft cocktails is that there is no 'standard'...our only standard is to use fresh fruits, herbs, and house-made mixers whenever possible...for weddings we can craft a cocktail to reflect personal taste, a sense of place, and authenticity," shares the owner.

Let Them Eat Cake!

Text by Tina Causey-Bislick
Photography by Steve Keith

At the heart of every wedding reception is the cake. From antiquity to modern times, matrimony has been celebrated over cake. The Romans had a custom of breaking a cake made of wheat over the bride's head for prosperity and fertility, while in medieval times the British stacked biscuits, scones, and other confections in a tower, encouraging the bride and groom to kiss each other over the mound (for good luck) without toppling the pillar of sweets.

The tiered wedding cake we recognize today came into fashion when Prince Albert married Queen Victoria in 1840. The intricately decorated, 300-pound, artistic masterpiece was described as "consisting of the most exquisite compounds of all the rich things with which the most expensive cakes can be composed, mingled and mixed together into delightful harmony by the most elaborate science of the confectioner."

Today, just about anything goes in terms of flavor, design, color, and decoration. Aruba's bakers and pastry chefs are happy to accommodate each couple's personal taste and flair. Trends they see include fondant icing (the smooth, classic finish of fondant yields a simple elegance and provides a great canvas for artistic touches and embellishments, and it also holds up well for outdoor weddings); incorporating a different flavor for each layer to offer guests variety; and a dessert table anchored by a smaller wedding cake surrounded by a decadent menagerie of sweets for guests to enjoy.

Francine Bardouville
W Cakes Aruba

What started as a hobby is now a business for this baker whose talent is often called upon from resorts like the Marriott Resort & Stellaris Casino. The three moist layers of cake here include lemon, red velvet, and a vanilla-strawberry swirl with layers of buttercream in between. Francine used individually layered pleats of fondant as the base of her design. To the naked eye, the flowers appear to be fresh, but Francine's artistic skill and knack for intricate detail reveal edible sugared flowers made of gum paste. Francine can be contacted directly at +297-593-1247.

Luimar Olive
Renaissance Aruba Resort & Casino

As pastry chef for the Renaissance for more than three years, Luimar oversees all that is sweet, including custom wedding cakes. Luimar's creation for us bucks the traditional round shape for a modern, square shape inspired by gift boxes. Smoothly covered in fondant and enhanced with fondant ribbons and bows is a rich, brownie-based cake with walnuts and ganache, and instead of a traditional frosting between the layers, Chef Olive ups the decadent degree with a creamy cheesecake filling laced with fresh strawberries.

Chef Yiduo "Dora" Wang
The Ritz-Carlton, Aruba

Although Chef Dora happily bakes any flavor combination requested, the three standards of The Ritz-Carlton, Aruba are a deep, rich chocolate paired with chocolate fudge, traditional red velvet with the must-have cream cheese filling, and the new favorite of brides and grooms—pistachio with a creamy milk chocolate filling presented in eight quarter-inch layers that give an impressively light and silky texture on the palate. The cake is decorated in smooth fondant with royal-icing detail and aqua sugared blooms evocative of our Caribbean Sea.

Chef Geert van Mil
The Patissier

An on-trend style for 2016 is the deconstructed “naked cake.” The less-is-more, rustic style brings surprising drama to a reception. Pictured here is a classic vanilla with buttercream between the layers, decorated with fresh fruit and flowers. Chef Geert, who worked as Divi Resorts Aruba’s pastry chef for many years and now has his own cake and pastry business, has made this cake in a variety of flavors.

The Bold and the Beautiful

Shar Chatram of Shar's Flowers

A bouquet does not have to be a mammoth, cascading affair to make a statement. The intensity of this bouquet comes from deep primary colors and the eye-catching pattern of the spotted, magenta vanda orchids. Bright red roses, deep burgundy tulips, rich violet delphiniums, lavender statice, and the spiky, steel-blue eryngium (an herb also known as sea holly) round out the ensemble.

Bouquet Virtuosity

Text by Tina Causey-Bislick
Photography by Steve Keith

Sorry, single ladies—these bouquets are just too beautiful for brides to toss away! Our local florists create hundreds of bouquets every year, both for local brides and those who have chosen Aruba for their dream destination wedding. According to local florist Shar Chatram, attention to detail and uniqueness paired with the bride's personal taste are paramount when creating a memorable bouquet.

Since Aruba is a desert island, growing bouquet-worthy flowers on a commercial scale is not practical. Flowers are shipped to the island mainly from South America (Colombia) and Holland. With the exception of a few flowers that bloom in certain seasons, just about any bloom can appear in a bouquet with enough lead time to order and ship it to the island.

The “it” flowers, informs Shar, seem to consistently be roses (no surprise there), orchids, and hydrangeas. Brides wanting that exotic island look lean more towards brightly colored flowers like birds of paradise, lilies, gerberas, delphiniums, and sunflowers.

Here, three of our island florists give us an intoxicating whiff of some of their work. □

Tone-on-Tone

White roses and hydrangeas are topped off with phalaenopsis orchids with a pop of deep pink in the center for a simple, sophisticated bouquet.

Aruba's coral- and pink-hued sunsets come to life in this bouquet of roses, Asiatic lilies, and fragrant eucalyptus.

Rustic CharmHester Kipping of Hester's Creations*

Amazing floral architecture is exhibited in this bouquet that features petals of the cymbidium orchid constructed to create one large central flower. Asparagus virgatus provides the fine greenery, lisianthus offers soft pink blooms, dianthus "green trick" adds texture with spiky blooms, skimmia brings color definition, and pink pepper berries are the perfect rustic accessory.

The Caribbean Snow QueenHester Kipping of Hester's Creations*

Plump, green-tinted, white mondial roses are surrounded by baby's breath, delicate but dramatic nerine blooms, asparagus plumosus (species of fern) coated in white snow spray, and white feathers to form this angelic bouquet.

Venue ALTERNATIVES

In addition to the ceremony and reception, many couples also include pre- and postnuptial events in their festivities. Aruba's local restaurants provide that homegrown charm and personable service that can make any event a memorable part of the destination wedding experience.

Here, a few of our favorite businesses that are seasoned in organizing and hosting receptions, welcome dinners, rehearsal dinners, bridesmaid luncheons, and more.

Pinchos Grill & Bar

This stylish restaurant is fashioned on a pier over the Caribbean Sea and features a menu highlighted by grilled seafood and meats in contemporary presentations, as well as a well-thought-out wine list and cocktail menu. It's no wonder Pinchos has hosted a variety of wedding celebrations, with local owners Robby and Anabela seeing to every detail of the event. A favorite of wedding couples is the restaurant's decorations, which are locally sourced for a true Aruban ambiance.

Drunk on puppy love at Yappy Hour

Who let the dogs out? Woof, woof, woof, woof! In January, island pooches enjoyed their first-ever Yappy Hour, accompanied by their owners. Hosted by Eline and Ron Hubjers of Barney's Restaurant, the ARF-Aruba (Animal Relief Foundation) fundraiser was organized by Cheryl Talcof and Kathy Andreottola.

The foundation places some 200 dogs each year with Canadian and American animal-loving families. The well-attended event raised $5,050, which will be spent on the sterilization of stray dogs, veterinary care (vaccinations, preventive medicine, and treatment of any illnesses), food, boarding, health certificates, and transportation to their forever homes abroad.

Said organizer Cheryl Talcof, "Special thanks goes to Eline and Ron Hubjers of Barney's Restaurant for helping to organize this event and donating their restaurant, profits, and their time selling raffle tickets and working during the event...without them, this event would not have happened."

An impressive list of local and tourist volunteers and local businesses donated time, products, services, and gift certificates. "Thank you to those who attended and those whose generosity made it a success. This is truly a community that has come together for a great cause, and I am proud to be part of this community," shares Talcof.

ARF-Aruba wishes to thank the following individuals and businesses:

Divi Aruba All-Inclusive unveils new pool-view building and Mexican eatery

Divi Aruba recently welcomed some new additions to its resort property. Guests can now stay in the new pool-view building and enjoy authentic Mexican cuisine at Pure Lime.

Divi Aruba's first pool-view category building offers 60 luxury rooms and two swimming pools. Each guest room has a patio or balcony facing the pools and amenities that include a built-in fridge, a floating desk with pop-up electrical outlets and USB ports, and a bathroom with a walk-in shower and double sinks. The entire structure was constructed as a "green" building in accordance with sustainable practices, featuring solar heaters, sun-reflecting sliding doors, and LED lighting.

Pure Lime marks the tenth dining option for the Divi and Tamarind Aruba sister properties. The kitchen is led by Executive Chef Lyssette Van Der Biezen, who was born and raised in Mexico, grew up with its traditional cuisine, and later studied international gastronomy. The restaurant features an open kitchen and a menu showcasing a variety of savory Mexican dishes and signature drinks. The restaurant's vibrant décor is inspired by modern Mexican art with bright colors accented with lime green, chalkboard-painted booths, and high tables.

Azure Beach Residences, now under construction on Eagle Beach, will consist of 106 spacious whole-ownership condominium units and 9 superb villas, housed in two residential towers. The two- to five-bedroom units will be decorated in contemporary style and will feature elevated ceilings, roomy terraces, upscale appliances and electronics, wireless Internet, and stunning, unobstructed views of Eagle Beach and the Caribbean Sea.

Planned on-site amenities include a private beach protected by a jetty, two swimming pools, a fitness center, a tennis court, a residents-only club room, a landscaped sundeck, and expansive green lawns. Services include poolside and beach butler service, concierge services, pre-arrival grocery stocking, and daily maid service.

According to project manager Alberto Perret-Gentil, "Our vision is to create a high-quality product with all the modern conveniences and services of a full-service resort. When designing the master plan, we took into account the buyer's interest in getting a good return on investment, striking the right balance between having great amenities and keeping homeowners' association fees low."

The property is located steps away from Aruba's two most popular beaches/tourist areas, Eagle Beach and Palm Beach. Golf privileges can be enjoyed at two nearby courses, including Tierra del Sol, designed by Robert Trent Jones, Jr. Just four miles from Azure Beach Residences, the capital of Oranjestad serves as a cosmopolitan tourist destination.

Enjoy the beautiful beaches and turquoise waters of Aruba—and make some money while you do!

People are increasingly buying vacation property as an alternative investment to the stock exchange and bond market, particularly since the 2007 financial crisis and the dismal results of 2015. The vacation rental industry is a 100-plus billion dollar market growing quickly worldwide with the support of Airbnb, VRBO, HomeAway, TripAdvisor, and other vacation companies. During the past two years, 22% of leisure travelers have stayed in a vacation rental as an alternative to a traditional hotel or resort, and 24% have stayed in a condominium resort. These travelers are looking for a different experience, away from the crowds in a more homey and tranquil environment.

Why not consider buying a vacation property in Aruba to reap the benefits of its rental income while enjoying this beautiful island at the same time? With 65 years in the development business, the Pering Group is now offering you this unique opportunity with the latest addition to its exclusive portfolio of luxury condominium developments in Aruba—Azure Beach Residences. This upscale condominium complex will enjoy a privileged location in one of the few beachfront properties left on the island.

ISLAND-HOPPING

Decompressing at the Divi I

Text by Tina Causey-Bislick
Photography by Steve Keith

I live on Aruba...yep, I'm a lucky gal! But living on an island is not tantamount to vacationing on an island. "Living" entails working, attending to a house, garden, and dogs, paying bills, grocery shopping, meeting deadlines...yes, it's the daily grind, island style. When I need a quick escape, it's not like I can jump in my car and head to some remote cabin or quaint B&B out in the country for the weekend; my quick escape to decompress from the daily grind is to island-hop over to Bonaire, a sister island of Aruba. A direct flight—from wheels up to wheels down—puts me there in less than 45 minutes, 20 minutes gets me through customs and to my luggage, and 20 minutes later I am checked into my hotel and relaxing by the sea...that's less than two hours to take me from the dregs of nine-to-five to vacation bliss!

Now when I say "decompress," I mean it, literally. Bonaire is my Zen place. As soon as I step off the plane and down the ladder (this is an old-school Caribbean airport and I love it), and the moment my feet touch the tarmac, I can feel all the stress that has turned my insides into a pressure cooker release with an involuntary (and audible) sigh escaping my lungs...Bonaire, I love you, baby; you never disappoint me!

This great escape happens once or twice a year for me, and my go-to resort has always been the Divi Flamingo Beach Resort & Casino. There are no major brand hotel chains here—and that's a good thing. Divi has managed to skirt that line between homegrown, authentic character and the reliability and accountability that come with staying with a “company” hotel. Divi Resorts, based out of North Carolina, has a portfolio of eight exclusive resorts throughout the Caribbean, with the Bonaire property opening more than 50 years ago.

A 3,300+ sq. ft. sun deck/cabana lounge was constructed. The deck, named puresundeck, is elevated and secluded, offering loungers unobstructed views of sunsets over the Caribbean plus a close-up on sea life in the Calabas Reef below.

A 4,700+ sq. ft. beach area with canopied daybeds and chaise lounges was constructed in front of the resort by converting an existing grass lawn into a beach. Tons of white sand was used to create the beach atop a raised platform with steps leading into the blue Caribbean waters.

Bonaire is best known as the scuba diving capital of the Caribbean, and many resorts on the island are anchored by dive operations. The Divi Flamingo is no exception, and has a rightful place as a pioneer of dive-based vacations in the Caribbean. The exception is in Divi’s approach to accommodations, most notably in its recently completed multimillion-dollar renovation. Bonaire has consistently relied on dive vacationers as the foundation of tourism, but the island’s vacation value goes far beyond that. In today’s ever-changing world, even small island nations have been impacted with unprecedented commercialization (some see that as a good thing, others not so much). But Bonaire has been able to maintain that quiet, laid-back vibe of the Caribbean’s yesteryear (there is nary a stoplight to be found). That is something rare these days, and with many modern vacationers seeking authentic experiences, Bonaire is an extraordinary commodity in the Caribbean. Realizing this, Divi Resorts invested in the Bonaire property by designing enhancements to elevate the beachside resort experience.

“Beachside” is a misnomer for the most part in Bonaire. Due to the island’s geography, wide expanses of beaches as we know them in Aruba just do not exist in Bonaire (but trust me, the stunning clarity of the sea and the island’s dazzling coastline make up for the lack of beaches). The Divi Flamingo, however, brings the beach to guests with the recent addition of a 4,700+ sq. ft. beach area with canopied daybeds and chaise lounges. In addition, a 3,300+ sq. ft. sundeck/cabana lounge was constructed. The deck, named “puresundeck,” is elevated and secluded, offering loungers unobstructed views of sunsets over the Caribbean and a close-up of sea life swimming around the Calabas Reef below. The resort’s freshwater pool area underwent a complete update as well, with travertine decking, daybeds, lounge chairs, and chic cabanas.

But perhaps my favorite element of the Divi Flamingo will always be the resort’s terraces—they are the next best thing to actually having a room over the sea. The terraces are just above the surf, and the views are incomparable. To me, this is Bonaire. When I am feeling stressed or overwhelmed, I take a moment to envision myself sitting on the terrace, feet propped up on the balcony...can you hear that? That’s the sound of decompression.

The food and beverage program received an overhaul with new menus, fresh paint, and upgraded decor at Chibi Chibi, its beachside lunch and dinner restaurant, along with the addition of pureocean, the resort's brand new pavilion-style oceanfront restaurant.

Renovations to Divi Dive, the PADI Five Star Dive Center, are on par with Bonaire's stature as one of the top three dive sites in the world. Improvements included a completely upgraded Divi Dive retail shop as well as modern improvements to the dive classrooms and lockers. It also expanded its fleet of dive boats with the acquisition of a 36' Newton dive boat, named pureocean.

THE HOLLYWOOD SMOKEHOUSE

The Hollywood Smokehouse is Aruba's only authentic smokehouse. Family owned and operated, this upscale barbecue joint combines southern cuisine with warm, island hospitality. Meats are smoked low and slow over hickory and applewood, and served with home-made sauces and side dishes from family recipes. The signature blackberry bourbon lemonade is one of many original crafted cocktails to enjoy with the award-winning barbecue.
